A digital portfolio is an online collection of work that represents our abilities and skills as a professional in our field.

It is typically made up of our best work over a period of time.

And can be made by educators, professionals as well as students.

WHAT IS A DIGITAL PORTFOLIO?

BULBAPP.COM

- Bulb is a website for creating our own digital portfolios.
- Anyone can create their own free accounts and start creating pages and collections.

SO WHAT IS A BULBAPP?

Bulb is a web based platform where students and educators can curate, create, share, and showcase their work.

The main goal of the service is to provide a space where teachers can evaluate the work created by their students and students can showcase their work by using all types of multimedia.

Below the text, there's a video player showing a landscape with the word 'FLAGSTAFF' overlaid in large yellow letters. To the right of the video player is a small image of the Arizona state flag with the text 'Arizona' and 'Arizona is a state in the Western United States...' and a 'Wikipedia' link. The video player has a play button and a caption field that says 'Add your caption here...'. The post ends with the text: 'So, here we were going to Flagstaff and Mike pointed at the name boards with names like the Bloody Basin Bridge, Horsethief Basin, Gen Crook trail so on and so forth that had signs of Wild Wild West. And thereafter, my focus was on those signboards and billboards. And now, we have just returned from the last outing of the program with the last two standing fellows. As usual, Shari, our Program Manager, had planned it for me and Eva. I agreed to it reluctantly, but was too hesitant to refuse the offer. I almost took my phone to text Shari when Eva stopped me, it was the Phoenix zoo that had just reopened, I had planned to go to the place in March with Eliz because Eva did not like the idea of seeing the animals in the cage. She is so used to seeing them walk, stroll, hunt and sleep freely. We were there at 7 at the gates of the Phoenix zoo. Took an Uber to reach ten minutes early. Stepping out of the car I looked around and noticed the rocks at a distance with a baseline of saguaro cacti. And just when I was about to enter the zoo gate I noticed a wide hole in that distant rock. Oh my God! Phoenix Zoo is located next to Papago Park.'

I was one among the sixteen Fulbright Fellows who were assigned Arizona State University, for the Spring semester at Arizona. We were here to stay from Jan to May 2020, on a J1 Visa and were not allowed to break our stay under any circumstance. Meanwhile I had in my bucket list a few must visit places in Arizona. When in March, I had sent my consent to return to my home country I was disappointed at how the virus played a spoilt
